

Thank you for organising an event in the ALN Staff Development programme for this year. Your input into the programme is what makes it so successful and is really appreciated.

The ALN Development Managers, Nicky Freeman & Andy Walsh, co-ordinate the overall ALN Staff Development programme, as well as evaluating events to inform future ALN planning, and will provide support to you where needed.

This checklist should go hand-in-hand with the ALN Staff Development Event Outline Form which should be completed as soon as possible so that we can begin to advertise and publicise your event. As soon as it is ready, please send it to Nicky & Andy.

The following checklist is aimed at supporting you when organising your event.

Organising the Event

Online Events

If your event is being run online there are several things to consider:

- the platform you will use eg Zoom / Teams (knowing in advance which platform is being used for an event is helpful to attendees)
- the length of time that the event will run bearing in mind participants may struggle to maintain engagement online for an extended period of time. ALN events run online have tended to be around 90-120 minutes on average, providing time for presentations and discussion
- the contributions you will need from external institutions
- if you would like to include small group discussions and therefore if there is the facility to use breakout rooms on your preferred platform
- the maximum number you would prefer to cap participants at (this may be pertinent if you are planning on breakout group discussions)

There is more information in the Top Tips Guide to Running an ALN Event on the ALN website.

In-person Events

Find a Suitable Venue

When locating a room on campus, please consider the suitability of the room for the style of event you want to run and bear the following in mind:

- how accessible the room and building are – would they accommodate a wheelchair? Are there seating options in the room i.e. some chairs with arms and gaps at tables if wheelchair users are attending? Are there accessible toilets close by?
- how the room should be laid out – for example, boardroom style, lecture theatre or cabaret-style; are break-out rooms / spaces also needed? NB the preferred set up is cabaret style for most events to allow for group work and discussion
- are there gender neutral toilets at the venue – if not, try to direct attendees to other places on campus which can accommodate them

Format of the Event

Consider the input required by participants and the format of the session:

- decide in advance who will facilitate the session and what will be required to ensure the facilitation process works well

- if the session is an Exchange of Experience, consider setting expectations from the outset by including a standard sentence such as “As the session is an exchange of experience, please bring along your ideas and enthusiasm and be ready to share your thoughts and feedback”
- what often works well at ALN sharing of experience events is 3 (maximum 4) speakers presenting for a maximum of 15-20 minutes each. In a three hour event, this then allows for plenty of time for roundtable and group discussion, which is often cited as one of the best things about a ALN event, and means that all attendees are able to contribute

Partner Organisations

If you would like to work with any partner institution(s) or external bodies, the ALN Development Managers can assist and help make the connections. For in-person events, please consider budgeting for travel expenses, if external speakers are involved and require reimbursement, and check with the Development Managers first whether funds are available.

Whether your event is online or in-person, to make it a success, it is useful to have a broad range of speakers on your topic so that attendees get to hear about several different initiatives.

If you need assistance in finding suitable contributors to your event, the ALN Development Managers can put out a ‘Call for Contributions’ to all the member libraries.

- Action: Please put together a form of words which can be used for this, with details of what you would ideally like from the speakers – for example, particular topics you would like to cover, specific services you would like to hear about, duration of each contribution etc.

Please also consider whether there is any scope for research-related presentations in your topic.

Liaison with Presenters

Once you have found speakers/presenters for your event, it is your responsibility to discuss your requirements with them so they can plan their contributions to suit your programme. It is useful to discuss the length of time given to each speaker, time for questions etc to ensure the event is balanced and that equal priority is given to everyone.

If possible, obtain presentations in advance of the event. It is helpful if these can be saved by the host of an online event in case of any issues with screen sharing during the event or preloaded on to the PC at the venue for an in-person event.

- Please Note: Most attendees/participants find it helpful to have copies of any slides used during the event – please ensure permission to share them has been granted by the owners first and then send them to the ALN Development Managers to be shared.

For in-person events, discuss the venue/facilities with your presenters, and specify what equipment will be available, whether they would like to bring their own laptop, whether your room can accommodate Apple Macs etc.

Arrange Refreshments

For in-person events, the host institution usually covers the cost of one set of refreshments (tea/coffee/water - and biscuits if possible), and this should be sufficient for events lasting no longer than half a day. Costs should hopefully therefore be minimal. Participants could be invited to bring their own lunch to any pre- or post-event networking element.

- Please Note: if you are providing food and refreshments, ensure it caters for all dietary, cultural and religious needs

Promoting the Event

The ALN Development Managers will set up bookings on Eventbrite to promote your event (once your completed event outline form has been received). This will then link to the ALN webpage.

The ALN Development Managers will promote your event via the ALN website, relevant ALN JISCMail lists, Twitter and communication channels local to ALN members, e.g. regular electronic newsletters and updates.

Most events can be opened up to external attendees at the discretion of the host, particularly for online events where a cap on numbers is not required. If you decide that spare places can be offered externally, agree where you will advertise them. You could use LIS-LINK to advertise externally or via topic-related distribution lists. If external staff will be present, it might be worth discussing with any staff who are new to presenting (e.g. who may be using the event as a training opportunity and to develop their own presentation skills) whether they would be happy to present to external participants.

Joining Instructions

The joining instructions should be sent by the host/facilitator of the event. The ALN Development Managers will provide you with a list of names and email addresses registered on Eventbrite.

For online events, please send the joining instructions well ahead of time, either in a calendar appointment (preferred) or by email, so that participants have an opportunity to familiarise themselves with the platform you intend to use. Please ensure the instructions are clear and straightforward.

For in-person events, please send the joining instructions email to your attendees at least a week before the event, to allow for staff to make appropriate travel arrangements. Please include local directions to the venue, the exact details of the building & room, including the postcode and website link or campus map. Ensure you detail all public transport options and provide parking advice, especially those with accessibility requirements.

On the Day (in-person)

Name Badges:

- if you plan to make use of name badges, consider providing a section for attendees to add in their preferred pronouns
- take care to spell complex names correctly or ask people to write their own when they check-in - naming systems vary greatly across cultures and "known by" names can be different

Housekeeping:

- please ensure arrangements for housekeeping/health and safety/fire alarms are dealt with as a priority on the day

Directions to the Room:

- please ensure you provide directional signs to the room, especially if the building is difficult to negotiate. Signs on doors and stairways help attendees to find the room.

Feedback

The ALN Development Managers will create an online feedback form which will include standard questions about the event and how the attendees have benefitted or will benefit from attending. Additional tailored questions can also be added as required - please send these to Nicky and Andy before the event.

The Development Managers usually email the form to attendees on the day of the event and send a follow-up reminder a week later. For online events, it can also be useful to include a link to the form in the Chat so that attendees can complete the form during the event if they choose to. If this is done, it might also be useful to allow time at the end of the event for attendees to complete the form.

The form remains open for two weeks for most events, though this can be extended if required.

Role of the ALN Development Managers

The ALN Development Managers will support you as follows:

- putting you in touch with other ALN members and requesting contributions to your event
- suggesting potential presenters or themes
- attending any initial planning meetings, if required
- creating the Eventbrite entry and assisting with event promotion
- providing a list of names and email addresses before the event for you to use when sending out the joining instructions
- attending the events where possible
- sending out the online feedback form (and reminder) after the event
- consolidating and anonymising the feedback from participants (this can then be used in any feedback you provide to your institution or with any of the speakers)
- evaluating the events, in liaison with the host institution, focusing on content and what participants got from the event
- arranging for the slides to be saved and shared after the event
